Leonardo has sold its first AW169 light intermediate twin helicopter in Switzerland, a seven-seat VIP configured aircraft to be operated by Mountain Flyers and based at Bern Airport.

Mountain Flyers has previously operated a Leonardo AW109S GrandNew, which established Bern Airport's first twin-engine helicopter VIP transport service, but the AW169 will provide extended heli-taxi services from the airport, serving several routes across Switzerland and Europe with greater capacity and range. The order brings the number of Leonardo VIP-configured helicopters in Switzerland to over 20, and global orders for the AW169 to more than 180.

The Civil Aviation Administration of China has granted a local certification of airworthiness for the Bell 505 Jet Ranger X helicopter, opening the door for deliveries to customers of the aircraft in the country. Bell currently has orders for over 110 Jet Ranger X via its exclusive Chinese distributor, Reignwood International Investments, for a variety of uses including training and charter operations.
